

Registration opens for AMWA's March policy conference

January 10, 2022 at 5:00 AM

Join water sector, federal, and congressional leaders at AMWA's 2022 Water Policy Conference from March 7 to 9, in Washington, DC, to learn about the federal policies impacting the nation's largest drinking water systems. The event will provide an overview of key legislative and regulatory topics that will affect water utility operations.

Conference Agenda

On the event's opening day, CEO and Co-founder of Punchbowl News Anna Palmer will provide insight on the potential changes on Capitol Hill that can affect utilities this year and will predict what the shifts may mean for the political landscape.

The robust agenda will include the following topics, among others:

- Status of the Biden Administration's Build Back Better agenda;
- New federal infrastructure funding opportunities;
- Implementation of the Administration's equity and environmental justice initiatives;
- Activities related to water affordability, and the Lead and Copper Rule; and
- Updates on the MDBP Rule, cybersecurity regulations, affordability, and PFAS regulations.

Health Precautions

To ensure the health and well-being of its members and conference attendees, AMWA staff has put stringent COVID guidelines in place and is actively tracking the evolving guidelines at the federal and local levels. Visit AMWA's COVID page for a comprehensive listing of measures.

Registration

Register today, make hotel reservations, and join the conversation on social media by using #2022WPC.

Back to January 10, 2022

---

Source URL: <https://www.amwa.net/article/registration-opens-amwas-march-policy-conference>

List of links present in page

- Registration opens for AMWA's March policy conference | Page: 1 of 2

